Draw a still life drawing of a daffodil. This means you look at the flower and pay attention to all the details and parts of the flower. You need to keep looking at the flower as you draw and not from your imagination. You could go for a daffodil hunt out find outside – there are many springing to life out and about.

Spellings Challenge

Practising everyday only takes a few minutes and is key to success. Have fun to keep it interesting. You could turn it into game, e.g play 'stepping stones'. (These are pieces of paper where the child has written a word on each one). Call out a word and see how quick they can find it. Or put them on the stairs to say as you come up or down throughout the day..
